

Regards the new laws I feel that big business are always trying to leave small in the cold and it often feels like its to hard to get anything done.

So yes prison terms more power to the people who need it, allow the authorities to do what it takes. Between Visy and the petrol companies even down to Sensis who have such hold on adverting you can feel you have know rights and know service just pay the money.

So I say yes to anything allowing change and equal opportunities and making big companies think about there small business brothers.