

Here is a way to make ONE bold move and NOT touch, reduce, redirect or alter the funding of all departments.

This is a PACKAGE and should be read in total and introduced as a whole or it will not work. So read all before comment.

1. Extend GST to ALL food, health and education costs,(exclude residential homes but include investment homes).
  2. Increase the GST to 15%. (YES I MEAN 15%)
  3. Increase ALL pensions by $20/week AND increase tax free threshold to $28,000. This way the extra GST on food will be covered. Lower income and pensioners will not be buying residential investments. Pensioners and health care card holders will not be paying medical costs as they should be bulk billed. ( you could make this mandatory).
  4. Review the double funding for education and health so that these are now totally on the STATES as THEY will get the increased GST. This will give the federal government far more money to spend on THEIR responsibilities as there will be no findings for Health and Education in the future.
- The ultimate result of this plan is that those spending a lot on food, entertainment and other purchases, like you and me and other "high spenders" will be paying the bulk of the increase in taxation. Higher income earners have more capacity. Lower income earners and pensioners WILL BE SHELTERED!

THIS WILL ONLY WORK AS A PACKAGE AND MUST BE SOLD WELL. The trouble with all of the things the Libs are trying to do is their POOR salesmanship. You don't need to reduce tax rates and should not touch the superannuation arrangements now in place. Negative gearing should only be offset by profits on LIKE product. (House to house, factory to factory etc). There is a lot of tax being offset by wealthy developers that could be collected.

You can go to an election over this and IF explained that the "RICH" will pay more and those under $30,000 not a cent more, you will get my vote, even though it will cost me many $1000s as I spend a lot.

See you soon.

Graham
