To whoever it may concern :

I write in the belief that it is an error of judgement to limit cash transactions to $10000 . The error is based on a false perception within government that tax evasion and other financial misconduct is conducted solely by the public . Personally I believe that the majority of financial misconduct is carried out within the banking system , and quantitatively the magnitude of this warrants priority over more minor matters . I refer to the documentary " The Panama Papers " as indicative of the level of tax avoidance which the treasury appears to ignore .

It saddens me that the treasury lacks the courage & integrity to prosecute those truly responsible for the more major financial crimes , and instead bullies the public , while apparently turning a blind eye to the ongoing misconduct within the Banking Industry .

Yours Faithfully
